

ABSTRACT

Device and method for controlling an amount of regenerative water supply to a dish washer, the method including the steps of receiving a hardness value of washing water intended to use, retrieving, and displaying a time period of regenerative water supply relevant to a received hardness value of the washing water, and supplying the regenerative water to the ion exchange resin for the retrieved time period of regenerative water supply.